Amends provisions of the Inmate Rehabilitation and Workforce Development Act

Present law provides for the “Inmate Rehabilitation and Workforce Development Act” and for the program to be administered by the Department of Public Safety and Corrections (DPS&C); provides that the Inmate Rehabilitation and Workforce Development Council function as an advisory board for DPS&C in administering the program; and provides that reductions for room, board, and other administrative costs resulting from participating in a workforce development work release program shall not exceed 75% of the wages received by an inmate. The proposed legislation changes the name of the act to the Reentry Advisory Council and Offender Rehabilitation Workforce Development Act; changes the name of the council to the Reentry Advisory Council and provides the additional duties.

EXPENDITURE EXPLANATION

There is no anticipated direct material effect on governmental expenditures as a result of this measure.

The proposed legislation would not effect eligibility requirements; thus would not result in an increase in offenders eligible for work release. The Reentry Advisory Council will undertake additional duties at no significant additional cost as a board pertaining to workforce development programs.

According to the Department of Corrections there are 3,516 offenders budgeted in work release programs. Expenditures by the Department of Corrections for offenders participating in work release programs are $12.25 for private work release programs and $16.39 for parish/sheriff work release programs.

REVENUE EXPLANATION

There is no anticipated direct material effect on governmental revenues as a result of this measure.
